Norfolk, June 12, 1883.

Fire-Marshal Captain T. B. Rowland summoned a lury and was engaged to-day in investigating the late tire on the wharf lately occupied by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company, which is altogether a mystery. It was the largest conflagration here since the warehouses of the Norfolk and Western railroad were burned. The 900 bales of cotton were totally consumed. A lot of corn from the stranded atcamship Kimberly was also lost.

County Court-The Work on the Railroad-Deer. orrespondence of the Richmond Dispatch.1

JUNE 12, 1888.
The County Court has just adjourne having been kept open longer than usual to receive the reports of the commissioners of their valuation of land damaged by the rail-road now being built through the county. The Court decided, after a long argument, that the Court as now constituted had the same jurisdiction over the streets over which the rairroad proposed to run their trains as the Court had in 1777, when Powhatan was was passed which authorized the County Court to lay off the town of Scottville. The Farmville and Powhaian is now pushing on its grading rapidly. It is now completed to about three miles above this place, with the exception of some short breaks, and is also being built by the convicts at the upper camp, which is located about seven miles above the Courthouse. The work is under contract up to the cum'y line, from which the grade and work by Cumberland Courthouse to Farmville will be much easier than in this county, as there is only one stream on that portion of the road—stream on that portion of the road—than in this county, as there is only one stream on that portion of the road—than in this county, as there is only one stream on that portion of the road—than in this county Stream on that portion of the road—than in this county Stream on that portion of the road—than in this county, as there is only one stream on that portion of the road—than in this county, as there is only one stream on that portion of the road—than in this county Stream on that portion of the road—than in this county Stream on that portion of the road—than in this county Stream on that portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the portion of the road—than in this county Stream on the stream on the stream on th Tear Wallet, Church Spring Branch-which is very easily headed. We have been much surprised that Farmwille, although she has subscribed $50,000 to the road, does not allow the issue of her bonds for building the road at the upper end, for to say nothing of other advantages, it is evident that when the road is completed she will be the market of the upper part of the course of the special commissioners by the decree in the above-mentioned causes of 22d of May, 1888, has been duly given.
